

Dear Kandinsky Class

I hope you are all well and staying safe. This week has just flown by again and the weather has been extremely nice although not as hot! On Monday I was in school again and I also went in on Thursday afternoon, it is so quiet without you. I have been completing an online Maths course and have some wonderful new ways to show you how to use equipment to solve calculations. I know you all love to use the equipment and it made me smile thinking about you all using it in the way I was shown.

Jay's teachers asked him to write a story this week about taking a dog for a walk and he wrote an amazing story about a dog called Max going for a walk with his owner on a bike although his owner fell off his bike and was injured. In the end the dog comes to the rescue and barks to get help. He isn't used to writing stories and needed a lot of help from me. I was thinking about you when trying to write the story with Jay, I know loads of you would have helped him with his work and you would have given him some amazing ideas! We have also been working on his numbers to 20 and I have put a picture of Jay below of completing some number work.

I told you a few weeks ago about the cycle track going along the river in Wallsend next to Segedunm where we went on our trip. Well this week we decided to keep going along the track and cycled for about an hour and ended up in Newcastle, the track comes out just next to the Millennium Bridge on the quayside and the river views along the track are amazing! I have posted a picture of us below cycling along the track and you can see the views in the picture. Jay can ride really well now he can go up and down hills and rarely falls off, often he is able to go faster than me on such a small bike! I expect many of you have been cycling with your parents?

I have been doing some cooking and trying out new recipes and made some amazing soup which I will definitely make again. Jay likes to help in the kitchen when I'm cooking although he doesn't really like cleaning up! We also made some carrot cake and Jay was disgusted that actual carrot is put into the cake.

Please try your best with the work folders but remember you don't need to complete everything at this time it is more important to stay safe at home and have fun with your families.

Love from

Mrs Fish
